Additionally, we may be required to disclose the information, such as in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act 2000. We will process your personal data in accordance with the General Data Protection Regulation.

Consultation responses are most effective where we are able to report which consultees responded to us, and what they said. If you consider that it is necessary for all or some of the information that you provide to be treated as confidential and so neither published nor disclosed, please contact us before sending it. Please limit the confidential material to the minimum, clearly identify it and explain why you want it to be confidential. Alternatively, you may want your response to be anonymous. That means that we may refer to what you say in your response, but will not reveal that the information came from you. You might want your response to be anonymous because it contains sensitive information about you or your organisation, or because you are worried about other people knowing what you have said to us.

Questions relevant to all protocols

11. Do you agree that the Overriding Objective should be amended to include express reference to the pre-action protocols (PAPs)?

- ☐ Yes
- ☒ No
- ☐ Other

12. Do you agree that compliance with PAPs should be mandatory except in urgent cases? Do you think there should be any other exceptions generally, or in relation to specific PAPs?

No. We do not consider that compliance with PAPs should be any more mandatory than it already is in the Business & Property Courts. The existing PD on pre-action conduct strikes the right balance between having the necessary flexibility to facilitate settlement whilst preventing parties being forced to incur costs on a futile settlement processes at too early a stage in the proceedings. Given the complexity of issues in most large value commercial disputes, parties are often not in a position to settle at the pre action stage. Imposing prescriptive settlement processes on commercial disputes would result in unnecessary costs and complexity rendering English litigation less attractive in the international disputes market.

13. Do you agree there should be online pre-action portals for all cases where there is an online court process and that the systems be linked so that information exchanged through the PAP portal will be automatically accessible to the court (except for those designated as without prejudice)?

- ☐ Yes
- ☐ No
- ☐ Other

14. Do you support the creation of a new summary costs procedure to resolve costs disputes about liability and quantum in cases that settle at the PAP stage? In giving your answer, please give any suggestions you might have for how such a costs procedure should operate.

No. We do not support the creation of a new summary costs procedure for commercial cases. Most commercial settlements address liability for costs. Creating a costs procedure is therefore unnecessary and creates another layer of unnecessary complexity to consider when reaching a settlement sum.

15. Do you agree that PAPs should include mandatory good faith obligation to try to resolve or narrow the dispute? In answering this question, please include any views you have about the proper scope of any such obligation and whether there are any cases and protocols in which it should not apply.

No. We do not agree that PAPs should include a mandatory good faith obligation to try to resolve or narrow the dispute. Such an obligation would result in satellite litigation and lengthy inter-party correspondence as to what constitutes "good faith". In any event, commercial parties are generally already well advised on the benefits of settlement and seek to settle appropriate disputes at appropriate stages in the proceedings as it is in their commercial interests to do so.

16. Do you agree that, unless the parties clearly state otherwise, all communications between the parties as part of their good faith efforts to try to resolve or narrow the dispute would be without prejudice? Invitations to engage in good faith steps could still be disclosed to the court demonstrate compliance with the protocol, and offers of compromise pursuant to Part 36 would still be governed by the privilege rules in Part 36.

☐ Yes

☐ No

17. Do you agree that there should be a requirement to complete a joint stocktake report in which the parties set out the issues on which they agree, the issues on which they are still in dispute and the parties' respective positions on them? Do you agree that this stocktake report should also list the documents disclosed by the parties and the documents they are still seeking disclosure of? Are there any cases and protocols where you believe the stocktake requirement should not apply? In giving your answer please also include any comments you have on the Template Joint Stocktake Report in Appendix 4.

No. We do not agree that there should be a requirement to complete a joint stocktake report as this will again unnecessarily increase and front load costs and delay. Commercial parties who wish to reach a settlement will not be assisted by any such overly prescriptive requirements particularly when such a report is likely to be required before they are able to distil all the legal and factual issues.

18. Do you agree with the suggested approach to sanctions for non-compliance set out in paragraphs 3.26-3.29? In particular please comment on:

- a) Whether courts should have the power to strike out a claim or defence to deal with grave cases of non-compliance?
- b) Whether the issue of PAP compliance should be expressly dealt with in all Directions Questionnaires, or whether parties should be required to apply to the court should they want the court to impose a sanction on an opposing party for non-compliance with a PAP?
- c) Whether the PAPs should contain a clear steer that the court should deal with PAP compliance disputes at the earliest practical opportunity, subject to the court's discretion to defer the issue?
- d) Whether there are other changes that should be introduced to clarify the court's powers to impose sanctions for non-compliance at an early stage of the proceeding, including costs sanctions?
- e) Whether you believe a different approach to sanctions should be adopted for any litigation specific PAPs and, if so, why?

No. The existing cost and case management consequences for non-compliance with the current pre-action conduct PD are adequate. We are not commenting on litigation specific PAPs.

19. Do you agree that PAPs should contain the guidance and warnings about pre-action conduct set out in paragraphs 3.8-3.13?

☐ Yes

☒ No

☐ Other

20. Do you think there are ways the structure, language and/or obligations in PAPs could be improved so that vulnerable parties can effectively engage with PAPs? If so, please provide details.

21. Do you believe pre-action letters of claim and replies should be supported by statements of truth?

☐ Yes

☐ No

☒ No. We do not believe pre-action letters of claim

22. Do you believe that the rule in the Professional Negligence Protocol giving the court the discretion to impose sanctions on defendants who take a materially different position in their defence to that which they took in their pre-action letter of reply should be adopted in other protocols and, if so, which ones?

No. Parties should be entitled to refine and revise their positions in their defence. In commercial disputes, it is to expected that positions may change and develop once full (and time intensive) investigations are completed and the issues fully considered.

23. Do you think any of the PAP steps can be used to replace or truncate the procedural steps parties must follow should litigation be necessary, for example, pleadings or disclosure? Are there any other ways that the benefits of PAP compliance can be transferred into the litigation process?

No. If PAP steps were to replace or truncate the procedural steps post issue, those PAP steps will become significantly more expensive and complex. Parties will inevitably want to invest more resources to these early steps if they are carried through to the main proceedings and, in any event, will probably need to 're-do' such steps as proceedings develop. Moreover, if parties are in any event receptive to pre-action settlement, there is no benefit in imposing such additional expense on them.

Practice Direction - Pre-Action Conduct

24. Do you wish to answer questions about Practice Direction - Pre-Action Conduct? *

☒ Yes

☐ No

25. Do you support the introduction of a General Pre-action Protocol (Practice Direction)? In giving your answer please do provide any comments on the draft text for the revised general pre-action protocol set out in Appendix 4.

No. We do not support the introduction of a new general PAP which is over prescriptive, complex and will result in the significant front loading of cost and satellite litigation. We believe the existing PD regarding pre-action conduct is adequate and better strikes the correct balance.

26. Do you agree parties should have 14 days to respond to a pre-action letter of claim under the general PAP, with the possibility of a further extension of 28 days where expert evidence is required? In cases of extension, the defendant would still be required to provide a reply within 14 days disclosing relevant information they had in their possession and confirming that a full reply would be provided within a further 28 days. Claimants would have 14 days to respond to any counterclaim. If you do not agree with these timeframes, what timeframes would you propose?

No. We do not agree with these timeframes. For complex commercial disputes, these timeframes are unworkably short.

27. Do you think that the general PAP should incorporate a standard for disclosure, and if so, what standard? For example, documents that would meet the test for standard disclosure under CPR 31, or meet the test for "Initial disclosure" and/or "Limited Disclosure" under Practice Direction 51U for the Disclosure Pilot. In giving your answer we are particularly interested in respondents' views about whether the standard should include disclosure of 'known adverse documents'.

No. We are not in favour of a standard of disclosure from PD 51U being imported into the pre-action stage. It would make disclosure at the pre-action stage unnecessarily complex, expensive and (given that disclosure needs to be given by reference to the pleaded issues) impractical. Moreover, it is likely that any disclosure process completed at a pre-action stage would need to be repeated at a later stage as the issues and facts evolve.
