Dear Mr Walker,

I write in response to your regulation 28 report, sent to NICE on 4 March 2025, regarding the very sad death of Chloe Elizabeth Burgess. I would like to offer my sincere condolences to Chloe's family.

We have reflected on the circumstances surrounding Chloe's death, and the concerns raised in your report regarding drug interactions. The British National Formulary (BNF) provides key information on the selection, prescribing, dispensing and administration of medicines and we believe that they would be best placed to address your concerns.

The BNF is a joint publication of the BMJ Group and Pharmaceutical Press, the publishing division of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society. While we make the BNF available on the NICE website, responsibility for the content remains with the publishers and therefore NICE cannot comment on the concerns you have raised.

Your sincerely,

Chief Executive
